GREENEVILLE NEWS

New Case of Scarlet Fever Discovers on Sixth Street—Patient Removed to Hospital and House Closed.

Following the discovery of another case of scarlet fever at No. 5 Sixth street Monday morning, City Health Officer Lewis has ordered the family to remove to another house and the house will be closed. The new patient, a girl of 8 years, was removed to the Backus hospital Monday. This is one of several cases that have developed in the house, and Dr. Lewis is of the opinion that the building is too old for effective fumigation. The first case was discovered in a family that recently came here from Poland and located in the house. The house is owned by the United States Finishing company. Following the discovery of a second case, and the removal of the patient to the hospital, the family moved away. A new family moved into the house several days ago, and one of the children became infected with the fever germ.

Local baseball interest will center itself Saturday afternoon on the outcome of the game between the Wednesday Knights and the Taftville Bear Cats which will be played on the Providence street diamond.

MIMIC WAR ON ISLAND FORTS

Will be Biggest Mock Maneuvers Ever Attempted on the Atlantic Coast—Fort Wright Drives Off a Dozen Battleships from Fishers Island on Monday—Latest Ideas in Attack and Defense

Just as the last echoes of the final stroke of midnight died away, out of the blackness of the night, far to the east of Fishers Island, a single dark gray speck moved silently in the direction of Fort H. G. Wright, Monday evening. Hardly had it crept out of its cover of darkness when another tiny object of similar shape followed in its wake. Behind them came others, all in single file like Indians creeping on a foe.

Swiftly, stealthily, mysteriously, the long line of moving shapes drew nearer and nearer to the fort. Suddenly a shaft of light, a brilliant ray of the morning sun, shot out across the black expanse of sea and fell full upon the advancing fleet of torpedo boat destroyers.

In another instant the guns of Fort Wright burst forth their fury on the enemy's advance guard. One by one the torpedo boat destroyers were picked out, and had the ammunition been in the shells it is probable that in the morning several ships would be resting on the bottom of the sea.

This was the dramatic beginning of the mimic war which is to test the efficiency of the coast artillery defense against a theoretical invasion of a foreign fleet. The torpedo boat destroyers continued their attack and hovered in the vicinity until 5.30 this morning, when they retired to Gardiner's bay.

Two Attacking Fleets Repulsed.
At 5.30 Monday morning a fleet of 13 battleships preceded by five torpedo boat destroyers attacked in turn Forts Wright, Michie and Terry. These in turn retired to Gardiner's bay at 1.05 and there executed an "about face" movement, returning in the direction of Block Island.

At noon a second fleet consisting of the battleships Florida, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin and North Dakota, preceded by five torpedo boat destroyers, started an attack off Watch Hill. They were met by an avalanche of imaginary shells and kept at a distance of 6,000 yards. All in excitement at the island forts and there is constant preparedness for an attack at any moment.

In the daylight it is possible to follow the movements of the ships of the enemy, but at night the value of searchlight drill is brought out in all its force.

Skill With Searchlights.
How well the artillerymen have been drilled in this branch of the service was evident when a searchlight picked out a submarine approaching several thousand yards away with its small turret the only thing visible above the surface of the sea. The big guns are not used in repelling the attack. Instead what are known as saluting guns are utilized, these being fired at the same interval as the big guns and with equal accuracy and much less expensive for the practice.

It is anticipated that the mimic war which will occupy the greater part of the week will be the biggest thing of its kind ever attempted on the Atlantic coast. The fleet of the enemy is in command of Rear Admiral Charles J. Badger and the control of the defending forces is in the hands of Colonel John V. White, commander of the Northern Atlantic coast artillery department.

The general situation supposed to exist is as follows: On account of the strained relations between blue and orange, the blue Atlantic fleet arrived at Honolulu June 20. On July 15 due to complications in green territory the black ambassador left Washington. On July 15 the black fleet, composed of numerous warships, passed out of the English channel headed west and was expected to reach the Atlantic coast.

Little Sleep for the Soldiers.
During the coming days and nights there will be little sleep for the men who will be liable for duty at all hours in watching for the enemy and in thwarting any sudden moves. Searchlights will play an important part in the game, as much of the maneuvering will be at night. There are five of these on Fort Wright, three on Fort Michie and two on Fort Terry. These have been raised 10 to 20 feet so as to get full scope of the sea. All the guns have been overhauled and one or two of the batteries have been equipped with electrical firing devices.

Great pains have been taken to put the men into prime condition and medical inspection has been resorted to to determine physical fitness. Colonel Davis is particularly busy arranging for the maneuvers. Forty officers from the Coast Artillery school at Fort Monroe will take part in the defense. Major General Thomas H. Barry, commanding the eastern division of the army, arrived Monday morning. Colonel John V. White, commander of the North Atlantic Coast Artillery district, fourteen officers of the New York state reserve coast artillery and three from the Maine reserves came Sunday.

All more than fifty visiting officers will be entertained at the island forts.

The Latest Advances in Warfare.
The war game is of particular interest in view of the fact that eight years have elapsed since the last clash between the Coast Artillery and the navy. In the opinion of the secretary of war, the chief of coast artillery and the chiefs of the various supply corps, the affair will be of the greatest benefit to all concerned, giving opportunity for display of the latest ideas of attack and defense. Since 1905 coast artillery has been made in the methods of coast defense and in the method of fire control, wireless installation, improvements in searchlights and the control development of the system of submarine defense. The exercises are in no sense to serve as a criterion to the supremacy of one side over another.

Walter T. Milner Paid Fine in New London Police Court.

Six motor car drivers and one motorcycleist were fined Monday in police court for violations of the motor vehicle laws on Saturday and Sunday in New London.

The roundup of the motorists was by State Policemen Jackson and Rudd with the aid of the motor cycles with which the state equips them. They snuffed out from William street to Town hill and all sorts of violations were discovered by them as drivers approached. In a tour of the city streets the State Police picked up other offenders.

Atwood C. Page of Westerly, charged with reckless driving and speeding, pleaded guilty. State Policeman Rudd, who arrested Page Saturday on Town hill said his car was going about 40 miles an hour. Page said his speed was sure was not over 35 miles. Judge Colt imposed a fine of $10.

Walter J. Milner of Baltic, whose car was not completely effective, was fined from William street to Chappell hill, according to State Policeman Jackson, pleaded guilty. Milner told the arresting officer he had never heard of the regulations. He told the court he thought he was outside city limits. Judge Colt informed him that it made no difference under the present law. He told the offender it is less expensive to get his knowledge out of the automobile register than in such a practical way as in court and fined Milner.

FOUNDRY IN OPERATION.
New Equipment at John T. Young Bolt Company Used for First Time Monday.

The new John T. Young foundry was put into operation on Monday for the first time and heretofore the foundry in the output of the goods of the company, which has in the past found it necessary to purchase castings. It was found imperative to start Monday, although the equipment is not entirely completed, owing to the rush of orders and the impossibility of securing sufficient castings to care for the demand. The company has a pile of orders ahead and in a short time the foundry will be running at full capacity to care for the business.
